Dr. Samuel L. Wright, Sr.
Keynote Speaker

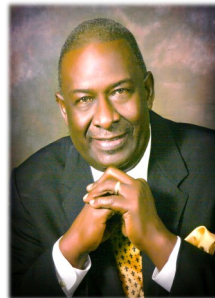

Dr. Samuel Lamar Wright, Sr., the only son born to the late Samuel Louis Wright and Rovina Deal Wright of Boynton Beach, was educated in Palm Beach County public schools. He earned degrees from the University of Florida and the University of South Florida.

At an early age, Dr. Wright accepted his calling as a freedom fighter. He fought for progress in his schools and continued the quest for justice at UF. In 1980, he was the first Black to be elected to Boynton Beach City Council. After relocating to Tampa, he saw a cultural void and founded the Tampa Bay Black Heritage Festival.

Professionally, Dr. Wright has had the pleasure of working in government and the State University System. While in Palm Beach County, he worked ten years for the Board of County Commissioners in the Community Action Agency and in Tampa, he has worked 27 years for USF. He affectionately is known for his acumen in recruiting students of color to the University of South Florida as its Director of Multicultural Admissions. Upon completing his doctorate in 1999, he served as the Associate Dean of Student and Parent Relations, Director of Multicultural Affairs and Student Ombudsman, respectively. Part-time, he taught as an adjunct professor in the Department of Africana Studies.

In February, 2013, he retired from USF after serving 35 years in the State Retirement System. He is iconic to the Tampa community because of his endearing commitment to students, as he is credited for changing the dynamics of the USF campus for non-majority students.

In July 2013, Dr. Wright became an entrepreneur and established Dr. Samuel L. Wright Consulting, LLC. He is the father of two adult children: Samuel Lamar, Jr. and Samaria Elizabeth.

Dr. Robert W. Judson, Jr.
Master of Ceremony

Dr. Robert W. Judson, Jr. became Pasco Hernando State College's (PHSC) second President in 1994. Dr. Judson's career at PHSC began in 1972 as a counselor and instructor in Dade City, before there was even a college campus. He taught the first ever PHSC course and in the following years became PHSC's first coordinator of financial aid. After serving as Dean of the East Campus in Dade City, Dr. Judson became the Provost in 1983. Soon after, he was named Executive Vice President. His appointment as President was particularly ground-breaking, as he was the first African-American president of the modern Florida Community College system.
